Fortify Partners with Fibernetics

March 1, 2011 – Fortify Network Solutions Inc. announces their partnership with National Telecommunications company, Fibernetics.

As one of the fastest growing telecommunications companies in Canada, Fibernetics is committed to providing their clients with affordable, cost-efficient, scalable Voice and Data solutions. Their recently developed digital PBX (private branch exchange) system eliminates the cost of business phone lines, offering their clients a substantial return on investment. Unlimited extensions, unlimited local calling, voicemail to email, find me follow me feature, conferencing, music on hold, automated attendants and many more great features are all included. Fibernetics is very pleased to partner with Fortify. “Fortify has an excellent reputation for outstanding customer service, and is an excellent solutions based provider, fitting perfectly into our model – we believe the Fibernetics Digital PBX fits in very well with Fortify’s existing solutions” said Chris Lehman, Vice President of Fibernetics Business Services. “The return on the investment is rapid. Our PBX solution reduces a business’ monthly telecommunications expenses by as much as 80%. These savings free up revenue that can be spent elsewhere. Small and medium sized businesses can access big business features and functionality at a fraction of the cost”.

Fortify is excited to announce their partnership with Fibernetics and believes that the digital PBX system will help strengthen the solution set that they are able to offer their clients. “I am very excited about our new telecommunications partnership with Fibernetics. The potential benefits for our clients are great” said Jacques Fortin, President of Fortify Network Solutions. Ian Barrett, Fortify Account Executive adds that “with two case studies done and two others about to deploy, the cost models showed significant savings for our clients on their monthly Voice and Data fees while providing a new full-feature telephone system at the same time.”
